

Dual Operator Panels

A second screen provides an enhanced overview of the crane during operations. It also minimises the risk of off-hire due to screen failure

During operations, it is beneficial for the operator to have as much information available as possible, without having to change the picture on the operator screen.

Switching between pictures on the computer screen whilst operating the crane simultaneously can be challenging to the operator.

Additionally, if for some reason the operator screen fails and no spare is on board, it may lead to vessel going "off hire".
